

Remote Camera Kits & Support for Golden Globes Nominees

Audiences are now accustomed to award shows that incorporate some version of remote or virtual collaboration, especially as travel restrictions keep much of the talent at home. For the 2021 Golden Globes, Dick Clark Productions reached out to AbelCine because of our experience with remote camera and lighting kits.

AbelCine's Rental and Integration teams built, set up, and delivered fourteen identical "drop kits" to nominees across the country. Each consisted of a Canon EOS 5D Mark IV camera, 24-70mm zoom lens, Litepanels Astra 1x1, Rode shotgun mic, and 27" iMac. The kits were shipped to nominees including John Boyega, Matthew Rhys, Lin-Manuel Miranda, Anne Murphy, Jim Parsons, Laura Linney, Julia Garner, Amanda Seyfried, Mark Ruffalo, Cynthia Nixon, Darren Star, Bob Odenkirk, Ethan Hawke, and Glenn Close.

As the kits were being delivered and set up, our Tech Support team helped bring the cameras online, troubleshoot any connectivity issues, and occasionally walk the talent through small tweaks of the camera or lighting setup. The support team worked from multiple locations in the Tri-State Area, as well as a Control Room in our NYC office. The project was a success, with all the custom kits delivering consistently and efficiently for the show's production.
